The Result of Trust in God

The movement from resentment to gratitude involves the discovery that God is the God of history and that things are quietly and slowly unfolding as they should. My spiritual task is to learn to listen to all that is going on and trust that God's hand is guiding me. Then life is no longer a series of interruptions to my schedule and plans, but rather the patient and purposeful way by which God forms and leads me day by day.

Gratitude makes the interruption into an invitation, and the occasion of complaint into a moment of contemplation.

Henri Nouwen

Time and Despondency

An old maxim from the East says: "If you are sad, you are living in the past; if you are anxious, you are living in the future, but if you are at peace, you are living in the present". Is it not one of our greatest challenges to live in the present? With the strong pull of sentiment, the enticement of the future and both of these things presented to us so vividly via the distraction of the internet, it's a wonder that any of us spend any time focused personally on the here and now - on what and whom God has put before us in our own lives.

The title above is the first part of the title of a book by Dr. Nicole Roccas. The full title of her book is: Time and Despondency - Regaining the Present in Faith and Life. I read it toward the end of last year and it spoke to me in a very intimate way.

My wife and I were just recently marvelling at where the last few decades have gone. We came to St. Mark in September of 2000 with two of our three children: one in elementary school and the other in middle school. Now, all three of them live on their own as grown adults with careers - one even married and with children! How we wish at times that they and we were still young and all together again. At the same time, we are proud of them and wonder and worry about them out there on their own. The past and the future; while we're busy focused on those, the present continues to slip away. This devious pull at its worst, can produce in us what has been called "despondency" - which is really a spiritual sickness rooted in a lack of care or effort in the present. Borrowing from the back cover of Ms. Roccas' book, we can understand despondency "as the extension of a broken relationship with the experience of time. Driven by the fear of death and the anxiety of living, despondency drives us to abandon the present moment, forsaking the only temporal realm in which we have true fellowship with Christ." The fathers referred to this as "acedia" and some wrote about their ongoing personal spiritual struggles with it.

If we think we are immune from it or that it really doesn't apply to us in this present "enlightened" day and age, all we need do is honestly recall how difficult it is for us at times to adhere to our rule of prayer and/or to fervently attend the liturgical services. When we feel numb inside, unmotivated to pray, fast or read the scriptures or care about God, or to believe that He cares about us or our neighbor; it is most likely, the "demon of the noonday" nudging us toward acedia in which we feel that nothing really matters.

It's been said that time exists solely to prevent everything from happening at once. To be sure, there is some practical wisdom in this which resonates with our Orthodox Christian theology. Time is an element of creation. God made it, and He Himself is outside of it and not bound by it. In a way, the spiritual challenge for us then is to regain the understanding of the sacredness of time and to move willingly and peacefully in its flow. It is a gift from God, for which we should be profoundly grateful.

We look forward to welcoming Dr. Roccas for our final Lenten Lecture this year on April 17th., and to learning more about how we can heal from despondency by redeeming time in the face of eternity. - Fr. Gregory

STEPPING INTO THE ENCOUNTER

Submitted by Matuskha Alexandra Safchuk

Over the last several years I have had Achilles tendonitis in both of my heels. It is not lost on me that this is generally considered an athletic injury and that if you look up athlete in the dictionary, no matter how much you search, you will not find me listed.

I have spent an enormous amount of cash on remedies and could likely open my own orthopedic museum with the heel cushions, braces, arch supports and compression gear. I have applied boatloads of creams and ointments and taken scores of anti-inflammatories and muscle relaxants and early on in my foot woes I consulted an actual physician and had steroid shots (possibly ending my Olympic career) and custom orthotics made. Even though I am not a millennial, I poured through the Internet and received the usual conflicting information, some of which I tried.

One particular method centered on finding the tender area and applying gentle pressure. Now, I have spent quite a bit of time (think, years) avoiding exactly that. I know where the tender area is, even visually, since I have had to go up an entire shoe size to accommodate my rather robust Achilles tendons. I have offered up to the tender area cushioning garb and numbing agents. I have warmed it and cooled it. I have tried to circumvent its exuberant activities by attacking it internally with my good friend, Advil. But touching it – UGH.

As I gingerly pressed on the “affected” area my foot would back away. Really? REALLY? More pain? What’s that about? But strangely, sometimes I would experience a little relief. As if my gentle pressure was releasing some accumulated tension. And this work, much like massaging tired muscles, made for less painful walking. The pain and swelling always return, like sore shoulders or a clenched jaw, but regularly giving it attention has seemed to stave off some of the worst of it.

Let’s face it. Having to give that painful area attention is a lot like confession. And any kind of self-examination, including the kind that we as Christians are called to regularly perform. Looking at those places inside of us that could use some work can be very painful. Who wants that? Not me. Acknowledging my weaknesses and spiritual shortcomings can make me back away with fear, anxiety, guilt or embarrassment. I want a quick fix, a few prayers, maybe a devotional book. Or I want to avoid the whole thing, including any expectations God might have of me.

But does ignoring God make God any less real? No. Going to the painful places of our personal failings reminds us of our weaknesses but offers us an opportunity to correct them, even if we must return over and over again. God is also present there, over and over again, offering us the strength to soldier through. God is always present, “filling all things” but we must be willing to participate in the encounter, to recognize, touch and smooth out those painful areas in each of us, some of them new and some of them old habits that have caused us to limp through our lives. In our joys and in our sorrows, and in our pain, God is with us!

THE LUNCH BUNCH

Submitted by Joan Mitchum

The Lunch Bunch meets the 3rd Monday of each month at noon, alternating restaurants in Maryland and Virginia. We try to choose restaurants that aren't too far into each state, and we vary the cuisine. Although we are not limited to retirees, it seems as though we are the only ones that look forward to Monday's. Please plan to join us. The contact person and restaurant is listed in the bulletin. Please call the contact to add your name to the reservation.

In April, because of Pascha, we have decided to forego the 3rd Monday, and go on Bright Monday April 29th, after Liturgy.

CHILI COOK OFF 2019

Submitted by Barbara Freimann

Do you like it sweet and hot? Or fiery and smooth? Well, at the 9th annual FOCA Chili Cook Off all kinds of chili threatened to smack your taste buds with heat and pleasure. Over a dozen pots of chili made their way to the checkerboard tables where sample cups provided everyone a chance to find their favorite.

Thanks to the Jacobsen and Prose families for hosting this annual event. Paula and Renee collected tickets and passed out beans for voting. Put all your beans in your favorite jar or spread them out over three chili entries. While many tasted and enjoyed their favorite chili, others prepared their spot for two, four or more Bingo cards. Our number caller, Matthew Sedor was anxious to call the different games like X, L, small picture frame, plus sign, four corners and more! Winners shouted “BINGO!” and after a verified win, selected a prize from the plethora of donated gifts.

Two candy-filled jars provided by Martha Baxtresser and Michael Chow, had everyone using their math skills attempting to guess the correct number of goodies in each jar. Winners were Marilyn Macht and Kaitlin Meyers.

Finally, the chili winners were announced. Congratulations to 1st John Sedor, 2nd Barbara Freimann, and 3rd Tina Burpee.

Many Kudos to all who helped out in the kitchen, especially those who provided the scrumptious desserts.

The Creed

The hand that spins the galaxies brought me into being.
The One who holds the stars has made me his own.
I am God's child. My life is rich, my days are sacred.
I am held by a love that's wider and higher than the farthest edges of this expanding universe.
I am a pilgrim in this world, in search of wisdom and wonder.
I will take new adventures.
And follow God into the unknown.
What I achieve is not as important as the person I become.
So I will seek to imitate the Nail-Pierced One.
I will step in the direction of my strengths and talents.
They are Spirit-given tools for my God-given tasks.
I will pay attention to my persistent aspirations.
They could be the whispers of God.
I will serve all I can and walk deeply with a few.
I will aim for great things but leave my legacy to God.
The path is long and the terrain at times hard.
Still:
I will not wish for another's life.
I will take my place, play my part.
Something important will be missed if I don't.
For the hand that spins the galaxies wants me here.

2019 LENTEN LECTURES

Week 1: March 13th, 2019

Marsha Zellem - Orthodox Mission Work in Kenya

Marsha Zellem gave the first of our Lenten Lectures this year on the topic of Orthodox Missionary work in Kenya. Her personal familiarity with the country and its people, as well as the many trips she's made there made her slide show come alive with commentary and insights. She put names to faces and showed us through her words and photos what it's like to live and work there. Descriptions of the kindness and intense personal faith of the Orthodox clergy and faithful she encountered were truly inspiring. It was especially gratifying to get an update of the work of Bill Black and to see the new pick up truck our parish helped raise funds to purchase. Those in attendance appreciated the decorative items she brought to the presentation from Africa.

Week 2: March 20th, 2019

Doug Dillon - The Greatest Story Never Told

If your interest was piqued, you were not alone! Doug Dillon gave the second talk of our Lenten Lecture series on the fascinating spiritual life of St. Patrick, Bishop of Armagh. An apropos subject given the proximity to St. Patrick's feast day, March 17th! Full of fascinating details on St. Patrick's life and experiences framed as a great game of Guess Who? As our Bible Study leader, Doug never fails to engage and rivet the attention of his audience!

Week 3: March 27th, 2019

Alex Norton - Life at St. Tikhon's, The Legacy of our North American Saints and St. Tikhon's Spiritual Connection to the Tradition of Mt. Athos and Elder Sophrony.

Alex Norton gave the third talk of our Lenten Lecture series on his student and spiritual life at St. Tikhon's Seminary. He intricately interwove his seminarian experience with an in-depth history of how the seminary humbly began all those years. He introduced the audience to its leaders, both academic and spiritual, past and present. Alex outlined his course experience with which classes were most beneficial for him each semester. He also described the extra pastoral activities in which he participates. He discussed and introduced some of the faculty and what they teach. And finally, he discussed St. Silouan the Athonite and Elder Sophrony, their connection with St. Tikhon's, their writings, and how they helped him understand his spiritual life.

NICOLE ROCCAS

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 17TH, 2019

7:45 PM

Topic: The Time of Christ and the Eternity of Despondency:
Healing an Ancient Ailment in a Modern World

Idleness. Apathy. Boredom. Procrastination. These are several symptoms of what early ascetical theologians called despondency (acedia, ἀκηδία), a spiritual sickness rooted in a lack of care or effort. A condition as old as the ancients, despondency thrives in today's culture of leisure, anxiety, and digital distraction, enticing sufferers into what feels like an endless loop of meaninglessness. This talk will examine despondency in greater detail, with particular attention to how it limits and cheapens our ability to truly dwell in the time we are given. How can we heal from despondency by redeeming time in the face of eternity?

Lenten Lecture Series

Dr. Nicole Roccas has been researching and writing about time from both a historical and theological perspective for nearly ten years. She is most well-known for her Ancient Faith blog and podcast, Time Eternal, the only online media forum devoted to the interface between Christian faith and the lived experience of time. Her book, Time and Despondency: Regaining the Present in Faith and Life, explores the connection between time and the spiritual sickness of despondency (akedia), first identified by Evagrius of Ponticus in the fourth century. In addition to writing and podcasting, Nicole is an adjunct faculty member at the Orthodox School of Theology at Trinity College (Toronto). She received her PhD in European History, with a subspecialty in Church History, from the University of Cincinnati in 2015. A native of Wisconsin, she lives in Toronto and attends Holy Myrrhbearers' Mission Parish (OCA) with her husband Basilios, whose efforts to indoctrinate her into the ways of maple syrup and Canadian spelling have yet to take effect.

You can find out more about her work as a writer and writing coach at www.nicoleroccas.com.

FOOD ITEMS FOR HIGHLAND

Dear St. Mark Parishioners,

Thank you all for your most generous response to the call to provide Spring Break food items to our friends at Highland Elementary! Thanks to your wonderful support, we were able to pack up and send over about 10 boxes so far. However, if haven't donated yet, you still have the opportunity!

Here are a few items which are still needed:

- Mazola corn oil
- Maseca corn flour
- Condensed milk

Fortunately, these items are easily purchased on Amazon. In fact, if you order today, you can bring them with you to church on Sunday. It would be wonderful if we could fully support the school's food pantry "wishlist".

If you have any questions, please let me know.

With love in Christ,

Alexandra

“Thus on Easter we celebrate Christ’s Resurrection as something that happened and still happens to us. For each one of us received the gift of that new life and the power to accept it and to live by it. It is a gift which radically alters our attitude toward everything in this world, including death. It makes it possible for us joyfully to affirm: “Death is no more!” Oh, death is still there, to be sure and we still face it and someday it will come and take us. But it is our whole faith that by His own death Christ changed the very nature of death, made it a passage—a “passover,” a “Pascha”—into the Kingdom of God, transforming the tragedy of tragedies into the ultimate victory. “Trampling down death by death,” He made us partakes of His Resurrection. This is why at the end of the Paschal Matins we say: “Christ is risen and life reigneth! Christ is risen and not one dead remains in the grave!”
